- The fantasy sports industry points to the UIGEA as proof that the federal government made the activity legal.
- The fantasy sports industry also identifies skill as the element that separates fantasy sports from games of chance.
- Over the course of a season, the rotation of players and trading of players will have a greater influence on the outcome of the contest than the performance or non-performance of any athlete in a particular event.

DAILY FANTASY SPORTS

Fantasy Sports

- Season long fantasy sports have been around for decades.
- However, they have not been very profitable as businesses because most of the revenue is earned before the season, then expenses occur throughout the season.
- The solution for increased revenue is Daily or Weekly Fantasy Sports.
 - Revenue or income can now be earned daily or weekly by operators.

16

DAILY FANTASY SPORTS

Fantasy Sports

- Daily claims that the games are still determined by management skill, even though the only task is player selection (or draft).
- The goal of daily fantasy sports (DFS) is to increase the velocity of the games by simplifying and increasing the opportunity to spend money to play.

 - The NY Legislature enacted a licensing regime for DFS as a skill game

39

NY FOLLOW UP

- An activist group sued the Governor of New York on the grounds that approving fantasy sports was an expansion of gaming, which is prohibited under the NY State Constitution
- The Supreme Court (court of initial jurisdiction) agreed.
- The Appellate Court agreed.
- The Highest State Court disagreed stating that the legislature was reasonable in defining DFS as a skill game and thus not gambling as other states had done the same.

40

TEXAS OPINION

- The Texas Attorney General reviewed the following:
- You ask for an opinion on two questions involving fantasy sports leagues. Specifically, you ask whether
 1. [daily fantasy sports leagues such as DraftKings.com and FanDuel.com are permissible under Texas law, and
 2. [whether it] is legal to participate in fantasy sports leagues where the house does not take a "rake" and the participants only wager amongst themselves.

41

TEXAS OPINION

- Are DFS Games Skill Games?

42

TEXAS OPINION

- Are DFS Games Skill Games?
- It is beyond reasonable dispute that daily fantasy leagues involve an element of chance regarding how a selected player will perform on game day. The participant's skill in selecting a particular player for his team has no impact on the performance of the player or the outcome of the game, in any given week:
- a selected player may become injured or be ejected and not play in all or a portion of the game such as an injury to a third-string quarterback causing a team to rotate three different players at quarterback in one half or a batter charging the mound after getting hit by a pitch and getting corrected and then ejected
- a selected player may perform well or perform poorly against the opponent that week, perhaps due to weather conditions such as a defensive tackle diving on a football after a blocked field goal attempt, only to allow the other team to recover the ball and score the game-winning touchdown
- a selected player's performance may be impacted by the state of the game equipment (say, the underinflation of a football or the presence of cork inside a baseball bat) or facilities (such as the air conditioning system in a basketball arena failing, causing the star player for a team aptly named "Heat" to suffer temperature induced leg cramps and be carried off the court);
- a selected player's performance may be impacted by a call of refereeing officials such as a catch that all individuals not wearing stripes believe to constitute a touchdown being ruled an incompletion with instant replay.

TEXAS OPINION

- Are DFS Games Skill Games?
- The list goes on. All of these random circumstances, especially if they occur after the participants' selections are locked in, amount to chance and do not involve any skill on the part of the participant. Chance happens, especially on game day. "That's why they play the game." Based on the facts you ask us to assume, the argument that skill so predominates that chance is minimal is nonetheless an admission that chance is an element and partial chance is involved. Accordingly, odds are favorable that a court would conclude that participation in daily fantasy sports leagues is illegal gambling under section 47.02 of the Penal Code

TEXAS OPINION

- Are DFS Exempted Bona-fide Contests of Skill?
- Two providers of daily fantasy sports leagues nonetheless contend that participation in such leagues is not gambling because the statutory exception to the definition of "bet" excludes "an offer of a prize, award, or compensation to the actual contestants in a bona fide contest for the determination of skill"

45

TEXAS OPINION

- Are DFS Exempted Bona-fide Contests of Skill?
- We noted that the Practice Commentary to the statute indicated the actual-contestant exclusion "is intended to exclude only awards and compensation earned by direct participation in the contest-the pole-vaulter's cup, the pro football player's salary-not the receipt of a wager made on its outcome." We concluded that, although the "exclusion may embrace athletes actually competing in the sporting events you refer to, it does not embrace those who pay entry fees for a chance to win a prize from forecasting the outcome of the events."³³ Moreover, the other types of contests in the actual-contestant exclusion (speed, strength, or endurance or to the owners of animals, vehicles, watercraft, or aircraft) inform the nature of what the Legislature means with the term "skill." Following this office's 1994 opinion, the Illinois Attorney General recently concluded that Illinois's similar statutory actual-contestant exclusion does not apply to participants of daily fantasy sports leagues.

TEXAS OPINION

- Are DFS Exempted Bona-fide Contests of Skill?
- Subsection 47.01(i)(B) [the bona-fide contest of skill exemption], and our interpretation of it, remains unchanged. For example, if a person plays in a golf tournament for an opportunity to win a prize, he or she is within the actual contestant exclusion to the definition of betting. If instead the person does not play in that tournament but wagers on the performance of an actual contestant, he or she is gambling under Texas law. To read the actual-contestant exception as some suggest would have that exception swallow the rule.

TEXAS OPINION

- Result
- Fan Duel exits the Texas market
- Draft Kings stays in the Texas market and files a declaratory relief action...

48

FAN DUEL LETTER

- Background
 - Texas AG issues an opinion that DFS is illegal gambling in Texas
 - Texas AG agrees not to prosecute Fan Duel if it ceases operation and notifies law enforcement before it offers DFS to Texas residents
 - Fan Duel pulls out
 - Draft Kings does not pull out of Texas, but rather sues the State of Texas and court proceedings will commence in due course
 - Fan Duel sees Texas as a big market that its rival is monopolizing
 - Fan Duel re-enters the Texas market

49

FAN DUEL LETTER

- The Letter
 - No claim that DFS is legal, to the contrary they agree to refrain from stating that such wagering is legal to avoid deceptive trade practice risks.

In connection with re-entering, however, FanDuel Group intends to adhere to stringent self-imposed restrictions. FanDuel Group will avoid any deceptive trade practices by:

1) Refraining from any physical in-state direct marketing of FanDuel, and any intentional marketing directed to Texas residents that makes claims about the legality of paid contests in Texas; and

2) Providing disclaimers in its Terms of Use and marketing materials that state: FanDuel makes no representation that participation in paid entry fantasy sports contests is lawful under Texas state law.

FanDuel Group further intends to refrain from seeking any widespread press or publicity concerning its Texas activities, other than on its own sites, apps, or social media feeds.¹
